General Obligation Bond

Ms. Peña noted that at the Board’s last meeting, the Citizens Committee on Facilities Needs recommended that a bond issue for the district is essential. However, the Committee received a recommendation from a political consultant that indicated the 2006 November ballot is going to be extremely crowded and could potentially compromise a ballot issue for the district. Therefore, the committee unanimously recommended that the district not move forward with bond initiative in November 2006. They also recommended that the Board make a determination, by January 2007, whether to pursue a bond initiative in November 2007; and that the Citizens Committee on Facility Needs be discontinued until a decision has been made. The Board concurs with these recommendations. Another issue addressed in their recommendation is that the district must plan for the ongoing student growth in far northeast Denver. The Board has directed staff to start planning immediately to manage that growth.

PUBLIC COMMENT SESSION – 6:08 P.M.

Social Studies

Michael Cory, teacher, South High School, said he was speaking as a citizen regarding the direction the district is going by cutting electives and some higher order classes. South High School has lost two valuable academies and the support they had from corporate partners; plus classes on World History, social problems, and African history. Social studies is down to a bare bones staff and can only offer subjects required by law: history, government, geography. It is crucial for the district to begin thinking about where it is going with these cuts.

Dr. Frank Deserino, teacher, said he is what is left of the graduation requirements committee and questioned why people from the curriculum department, who have either not taught in some time or have not taught social studies, are allowed to decide what is done in the classroom. Department chairs should decide, with teacher input, what is offered. Also, it would be better for students and teachers to have the redesign structure in place before the start of the 2006-2007 school year.

Graduation Requirements and Career and Technology Education

Robert Campoy said he is Chief Information Officer for the American Waterworks Association; Chairman of John F. Kennedy High School’s Collaborative School Committee and a member of their Career and Technology Education Committee; and a member of the district’s Career and Technology Education (CTE) Citizens Advisory Board. He asked that the district consider including at least two semesters of CTE programs as part of the high school graduation requirements.

Joyce Schlose said as Vice President of Work Force Development for Goodwill Industries and a member of the Career and Technology Education Board they consistently hear that people were not prepared for the world of work when they got out of school. We must prepare our youth to be self-sufficient and part of that preparation is the preparation they receive from CTE programming. She encouraged the Board to consider the ramifications of not having a career and technology education as an elective.

Jennifer Pike said she graduated from George Washington High School in 2002 and that the CTE classes she took had the biggest impact on her life. As a senior, the web page design, desktop publishing, and the future choices classes have been the building blocks for where she is now. The preparation students receive in CTE classes is real world preparation.

Kristi Espenshade from Goodwill Industries of Denver thanked the Board for tackling the issue of graduation requirements and encouraged them to consider CTE electives as a graduation requirement.
Board Policy Effects on DPS Teachers

Steve Bonansinga expressed his frustration as a teacher of having the same cycle every year. He said he is tired of having his job get more and more difficult: with more diverse students, a slower computer program, hundreds of papers to grade each week, volunteering two hours a day helping to implement the Denver Plan, the budget being a mysterious thing, and hearing about service of the classroom when he doesn’t feel served. He said he is tired of being hopeful that the next superintendent is going actually service the classroom, finally add more teachers, and funding that has raises for teachers, only to find that it is business as usual.

In response to Rev. Guzman’s question regarding diversity, Mr. Bonansinga said that he does not object to diversity, he has taken extra classes to work with diverse students, what he objects to is the larger class sizes and varying levels of ability that diverse classrooms create.

Dress Code

Student Ashley Selfer said that the East High School Speech and Debate team’s current service learning project deals with civil liberties. The issue they choose to address is the district’s hat policy and freedom of expression. They have come to discuss the reasons they feel this policy should be changed and to propose that each individual school have the ability to make the decision about whether they should have a hat policy or not, rather than it be a uniform DPS policy.

Student William Whitaker said that the hat policy creates a disrespect for environment within in schools. Administrators enforce the rule and make students take off their hats, but as soon as students are out of view they put their hats right back on and complain about the restrictive policy. It is a waste of time and energy to enforce this policy; Deans are down in the main hall every morning for the sole purpose of telling students to take their hats off as they enter the school. One of the reasons the hat policy was instituted is because of the gang issue. Gangs identified themselves by hats and gang fights were breaking out in schools. They interviewed East’s resource officer, Officer Phil Bentley, and he said that gangs are not a problem in the school; that gangs no longer use hats to identify themselves; and it would not increase gang problems at East if the hat policy was changed.

Student Morgan Hall summarized the 1969 Supreme Court case Tinker versus Des Moines. He said that this court case is similar to their situation and the issue of freedom of expression and freedom of speech. The Court affirmed that the issue was within the protection of the free speech clause of the First Amendment and the due process clause of the 14th Amendment.

Public Records Request

Joanne Roll presented the following open records requests to review the following documents: the May 2, 2020, Colorado Civil Rights Commission report which identified an achievement gap between African-American and Anglo students at four DPS high schools, including Manual; documentation that the specific provision in Policy IF-School Design was implemented in regard to the redesign of Manual High School into three small schools and the survey that shows the number and percentage of the school community that supported the proposed design; documents verifying when any and all of the deficiencies in the ELA program at Manual, identified by the Court Monitor or the ELA Department, were rectified; and documents which specifically give the reasons Manual did not receive revitalization monies. Copies of these Open Records requests are appended to the minutes of this meeting.

Ms. Peña adjourned the Public Comment Session at 6:53 p.m., and said that the Board will convene upstairs for its Executive Session.

Board of Education
